200,000 Persons Leave City for Suburban Homes in All Directors.

Will May Day turn the housing tide favor of home-seekers?

Real estate experts are looking for ecisive developments through all parts of the metropolitan districtports show more than 200,000 persons noving. Some started a week or two ago. The big mass is on the go now. And the exodus will continue through the month.

The drift is from old city sections to the suburbs-mainly from cramped. high-priced, over-crowded flats to small dwellings on cheap lands along the outer stretches of the entarged rapid transit zone. The movement is logical because suburban builders are in the midst of great activity, while flatbuilders in the city have been at a standstill for nearly two years. Renting agents among the flat dwellers say the exodus will do more than anything else to relieve the congested housing situation

Wanderers through uptown maze from the buildings. Builders are clearing sites also for big structures to The other arrest was that of David go up in many sections where available plots have stood idle. Between the two movements, landlords are facing a rapidly growing probability that there will be plenty of apartments-and quite a comfortable few left over-after the rush back to the city next Fall."

NEW HOMES OUTSIDE FOR OVER 175,000 PERSONS.

Of 21,523 private dwellings storted by builders throughout the metropoli tan district last year, more than 17, 000 were not under way until the last quarter, and most of them have been finished this spring, either for tenants or purchasers, making new homes for over 175,000 persons. Daily reports from brokers during the past few weeks have demonstrated how the great bulk of these new housings has been passing to city flat dwellers. No only have old Manhattanites spread outward through Brooklyn, Queens Nassau, Suffolk, the Bronx, Westchester and Jersey commuting territory, but the fast increase of Brook lyn population has pressed hundreds of old families there further into outlying localities on Long Island, while the home buying of Brooklynites is New Jersey has become a prominent feature, and the exclusive residential confines of Westchester have captured many wealthy families from the City of Churches. Statistics of early spring traffic of all of the railroads verify realty reports in regard to the record-break-ing rush outward of home seekers. The Long Island Railroad announced to-day that "unmistakable evidence of Long Island's growing importance as an all-year place of residence is reflected in the latest compilation of senger statistics, another record for commutation traffic having been established last month. Only a few years ago, the sale of 30,000 tickets monthly in summer, or of 20,000 in winter, was considered big business. But during all of the past winter the railroad had an average of 30,000 a month. During March there rere 24 052 commuters, exceeding by
